INTRODUCTION

An Author Index provides an alphabetical listing of contributors to a journal, while a Subject Index lists the articles that have been published by topic area. An Author Index shows, individually, the leading contributors to the journal. Institutional contributions can be inferred from the schools represented, although an author may change his or her school. The Subject Index shows what topics are of greatest interest to the researchers and to the readership of the Journal.

The Author Index and Subject Index that follow are for the Journal of Insurance Issues, Vol. XXI through XXXIII, 1998–2010. Two issues of the Journal were published annually during this period, with the exception of one year. A total of 105 articles, invited and blind refereed, appeared in the Journal during this period. There were 165 different individuals who contributed by authoring or coauthoring the articles. Of these articles, 24 were sole-authored; 42 articles had two authors; 32 articles had three authors; and 7 articles had four authors. The leading contributors during this period were Kathleen McCullough (6 articles) and James Carson, Cassandra Cole, Gene Lai, and Krysztof Ostaszewski (5 articles each).

The Subject Index was prepared using the same categories used in the most recent index, with two new categories. The topic with the largest number of articles was Financial Operations of Insurers (12), followed by Stock Price Reaction to Events (11), Pensions and Retirement Plans (7), and Insurance Regulation (7). In the previous thirteen-year index, Financial Operations of Insurers, Stock Price Reaction to Events, Investments, Actuarial, and Social/Government Insurance were the most popular topics. The number of Actuarial and Social/Government Insurance articles declined significantly during the most recent thirteen years.
